IDEN./SIM. BILLS:

Table with 4 columns: REFERENCE, ACTION, ANALYST, STAFF DIRECTOR. Row 1: Governmental Affairs Policy Committee, 8 Y, 6 N, Haug, Williamson.

SUMMARY ANALYSIS

Current law provides requirements for publishing legal notices and official advertisements. Publications must be in a newspaper that is printed and published at least once a week and that contains at least 25 percent of its words in the English language.

The bill authorizes a local government to use its publicly accessible website for legally required advertisements and public notices. The use of such website constitutes legal notice.

The bill defines "publicly accessible website" to mean a local government's official website that is accessible on the Internet. If specifically authorized by ordinance, a local government may use its website for legally required advertisements and public notices if:

- A public library or other governmental facility providing free access to the Internet during regular business hours exists within the jurisdictional boundaries of the local government;
• The local government provides notice to its residents at least once per year in a newspaper of general circulation, or the local government's newsletter or periodical, or another publication mailed or delivered to all residents or property owners within its jurisdictional boundaries, indicating that residents can register with the local government to receive all advertisements and public notices by first-class mail or by e-mail; and
• The local government maintains a registry of names, addresses and e-mail addresses of residents who request in writing that they receive advertisements and notices by first-class mail or by e-mail.

Advertisements and public notices published on a publicly accessible website must be conspicuously placed on the homepage of that website or must be accessible through a direct link from the homepage. The advertisement must indicate the date on which it was first published on the website.

The bill also authorizes a local government with an authorized government access channel to include on such channel a summary of all advertisements and public notices published on its website.

Finally, the bill provides specific authorizations for a local government to advertise or notice on its publicly accessible website provided certain requirements are met.

The bill may reduce local government expenditures associated with publishing required notices and advertisements in the newspaper; however, local governments might have to expend funds to create, maintain and issue correspondence from a registry of persons requesting notifications by first-class mail or e-mail. In addition, the bill also may cause a loss of revenue to the private sector and a loss of revenue to the state associated with corporate income tax revenue.

This bill has an effective date of October 1, 2010.

FULL ANALYSIS

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Background

The publication of legal notices in newspapers is a long established practice in Florida and throughout the United States. According to newspaper trade associations and independent analysts, "it's unclear how much newspapers collect in total from such publicly financed advertising."¹ At one newspaper company, Trib Total Media which runs the Pittsburgh Tribune-Review and other newspapers in western Pennsylvania, about 7 percent of revenues come from government-funded legal notices. Newspaper advertising revenues have been declining in recent years, 17.7 percent in 2008 alone. Classified ads have declined at an even greater rate, 29 percent, but the ad grouping that includes legal and public notices remains fairly stable, only declining 4.3 percent in 2008.²

The requirements for legal and official advertisements are provided in chapter 50, F.S. Current law requires that publication must be in a newspaper that is printed and published at least once a week and that contains at least 25 percent of its words in the English language. The newspaper must qualify or be entered to qualify as periodicals matter at the post office in the county where published, and be generally available to the public for the purpose of publication of official or other notices.³

When there is no weekly newspaper published in the county the advertisement may be made by posting three copies in three different places in the county, one of which must be at the front door of the courthouse, and by publication in the nearest county in which a newspaper is published.⁴

Current law also provides requirements for newspapers. A newspaper is required to have been in existence for at least one year. Also, it must meet the requirements for periodicals matter at the post office in the county where published.⁵ An exception is provided for counties in which no newspaper in existence has been published for a year. Proof of publication also is required in the form of a uniform affidavit.⁶

⁵ Section 50.031, F.S.

⁶ Section 50.041, F.S.

The amount a newspaper can charge for publication is standardized at 70 cents per square inch for the first insertion, and 40 cents per square inch for each subsequent insertion.⁷ Where the regular established minimum commercial rate per square inch of the newspaper publishing the official notice or legal advertisement is greater than the per square inch rate established in statute, the minimum commercial rate may be charged or the government agency may procure publication through bids. All official notices and legal advertisements must be charged and paid for on the basis of 6-point type on 6-point body, unless otherwise specified in statute. There are criminal penalties for non-compliance with these rates and charges.⁸

Effect of Proposed Changes

The bill creates a new section of law authorizing local governments to use its publicly accessible website for legally required advertisements and public notices. The use of such website constitutes legal notice.

The bill defines “publicly accessible website” to mean a local government’s official website that is accessible on the Internet. If specifically authorized by ordinance, a local government may use its website for legally required advertisements and public notices if:

- A public library or other governmental facility providing free access to the Internet during regular business hours exists within the jurisdictional boundaries of the local government;
- The local government provides notice to its residents at least once per year in a newspaper of general circulation, or the local government’s newsletter or periodical, or another publication mailed or delivered to all residents or property owners within its jurisdictional boundaries, indicating that residents can register with the local government to receive all advertisements and public notices by first-class mail or by e-mail; and
- The local government maintains a registry of names, addresses and e-mail addresses of residents who request in writing that they receive advertisements and notices by first-class mail or by e-mail.

Any registry of names, addresses and e-mail addresses of residents requesting receipt of legal advertisements and public notices by first-class mail or by e-mail is a public record unless a specific public record exemption exists. For example, information relating to the identification or location of a police officer or firefighter could remain protected in the database if the officer or firefighter requests in writing the protection of such information.⁹

Advertisements and public notices published on a publicly accessible website must be conspicuously placed on the homepage of that website or must be accessible through a direct link from the homepage. The advertisement must indicate the date on which it was first published on the website.

The bill also authorizes a local government with a government access channel authorized under s. 610.109, F.S., to include on such channel a summary of all advertisements and public notices published on its website.

The bill specifically authorizes the following advertisements or public notices on a local government’s publicly accessible website provided the previously discussed requirements are met:

- Advertisement directed by law or order or decree of court.
- Notice regarding special election or referendums. The local government responsible for publication must publish such notice daily during the five weeks immediately preceding the election or referendum.

⁷ Section 50.061(2)(a) and (b), F.S., provides that counties with a population in excess of 304,000 may charge 80 cents per square inch for the first insertion and 60 cents per square inch for each subsequent insertion. Counties with a population in excess of 450,000 may charge 95 cents per square inch for the first insertion and 75 cents per square inch for each subsequent insertion.

⁸ Section 50.061, F.S.,

⁹ See s. 119.071(4)(d), F.S.

- Notice of public hearings regarding the adoption of a local government comprehensive plan or plan amendment or the approval of a compliance agreement under the Local Government Comprehensive Planning and Land Development Regulation Act. The bill provides multiple requirements for such notice.
- Notice regarding the adoption of a municipal ordinance. Such notice must be provided daily during the 10 days immediately preceding the adoption on the municipality's website.
- Publication of resolutions relating to municipal public improvements financed by special assessments.
- Notice regarding hearings on municipal public improvements financed by special assessments. Such notice must be provided daily for two weeks on the municipality's website.
- Advertisement of specified construction contracts for utilities or extensions to a previously constructed utility. Such advertisement must be made daily for two weeks on the municipality's website.
- Notice of intent to use the uniform method of collecting non-ad valorem assessments. Such notice must be made daily for the four weeks immediately preceding the hearing.
- Notice by a taxing authority of its intent to adopt a millage rate and budget. Such notice must be maintained on the local government website until completion of the hearing.
- Notice by a multicounty taxing authority of its intent to adopt a tentative budget and millage rate. The hearing may not be held less than two days after initial publication of the advertisement on the local government website and not later than September 18. The notice must remain on the website until the date of the hearing.
- Notice of a specified error contained in a notice of proposed property taxes mailed to taxpayers.
- Advertisement of a solicitation of specified competitive bids or proposals for construction projects by a county, municipality or other political subdivision. The bill provides multiple requirements for such advertisement.
- Advertisement of a public hearing by a local government on an areawide development of regional impact under the Florida Environmental Land and Water Management Act of 1972.
- Advertisement of funding availability through a local housing assistance plan under the State Housing Initiatives Partnership Act.
